A QUEEN ANNE BURR WALNUT CHEST OF DRAWERS

England, circa 1710

This beautiful chest of drawers exemplifies the style of furniture that has become synonymous with the Queen Anne period. Small in scale, simple in concept and practical for everyday use, this chest of drawers epitomises the very best of early eighteenth century cabinet-making. The panelled effect of the top created by double lines of feather-banded inlay, with the richness of the burr walnut veneers in between is exceptional. The chest remains in remarkable original condition with the genuine character and patination that can only develop over three centuries.

An exceptional Queen Anne walnut chest of drawers, the top and sides veneered in burr walnut of the finest figuring and colour, the top with rare double feather-banded borders and moulded edges, with a brushing slide above two small and three long drawers, all with original locks and brass handles, raised on bracket feet.
