A REGENCY ROSEWOOD CENTRE TABLE

England, circa 1810

A very fine and elegant early 19th century Regency period rosewood centre, breakfast or dining table. The circular top veneered in particularly well figured rosewood with a lovely patina. Supported on a part ribbed single pedestal support with four hipped outswept legs terminating in finely cast stylised brass animal paw feet and castors.

Of very useful size - this table stands very well. The rosewood of very good colour.
