MAPPIN & WEBB LAMP

England, circa 1910

Mappin & Webb traces its origins to a silver workshop founded by Jonathan Mappin in Sheffield in 1775 and has held Royal Warrants to British monarchs since 1897. Mappin & Webb's master craftsman Martin Swift was appointed in 2012 to the position of Crown Jeweller, the custodian of the British Crown Jewels. He was responsible for preparing the Crown Jewels for the State Opening of Parliament and other state occasions.

Mappin & Webb is still today a company of international repute. Past patrons have included Queen Marie-Antoinette of France, the Empress of Russia and Princess Grace of Monaco. In addition to the British Warrants, the company historically also held Royal Warrants to both the Russian Tsars and the Japanese Royal Household. Mappin & Webb produced the original Ryder Cup trophy, and made trophies for Royal Ascot horse races for 75 years.
